

TESOL: Courses in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages

Department of Education: Health, Physical and Teacher

TESL 391 TESOL Methods and Applications: 3 Cr
Listening and Speaking

The course provides students with analysis and applications of TESOL methods. Students will develop their own methods in preparation for teaching both listening and speaking skills. Students' methods will be integrated within the framework of a syllabus that includes instructional activities examined in class. Fall semester; odd-numbered years.

TESL 392 TESOL Methods and Applications: 3 Cr
Reading and Writing

The course will provide students with a comprehensive understanding of TESOL methods and techniques. Students develop their own methods and materials for teaching TESOL techniques to cross-cultural students. Spring semester.

TESL 430 TESOL Practicum 4-6 Cr

A practical learning experience designed to meet the learning goals of each student. Objectives in each student's area must be defined in cooperation with the program director. Students develop their TESOL methods by teaching cross-cultural students in monitored situations. The practicum should be completed during the senior year. Prerequisite: ED 309 and either TESL 391 or TESL 392. Each semester.
